In attacking the provision for increase of that country by the Spanish Armada, of pay for the Commissioners, Representative Madden, of Illinois, called attention to the fact that they were surrounded by many assistants.

"When any information is sought at the District offices," said Mr. Madden, "one of the assistant engineer commissioners is usually the man who furnishes it and not the Commissioners themselves. They have their bureau chiefs in the District government just as in the other departments, and the Commissioners, therefore, are not the overworked individuals we are led to believe," Appointments by "Pull."

In response to a query by Representative Goulden concerning the method of making the subordinate appointments in the District offices. Mr. Madden said: "They are made by 'pull.' Every one there is on the salary roll for some political reason, and it is the most natural thing on earth that the salaries of the men who make these places should be suggested for a raise. These Commissioners can well afford to serve at their present salary; in fact, they ought to serve free of cost, for there is plenty of honor in the job and not a great deal of work. I trust the pay of these men will not be raised." In Representative Burleson the Com-

GREAT METROPOLIS URGED BY SPEAKERS

Kann and Knowland Heard at Californians' Banquet.

A greater San Francisco in 1915, by the consolidation of surrounding cities, and the fortification of the Panama Canal were the sentiments expressed by Representatives Kahn and Knowland at the jubilee banquet of the California State Association last night in honor of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at the Riggs House.

Representative Kahn vigorously appealed for the merger of all suburban cities of San Francisco into one great metropolis of 670,000 people as the fruits of the victory achieved by the Caliornians over New Orleans.

He was heartily supported by Repreentative Knowland, who declared himself soundly in favor of fortifying the canal as the best assurance of peace

Loyal to Their State. 'Californians are loyal to their State,' said Mr. Kahn, "Wherever a Californian lived he made it his purpose to rive his Congressman to understand that he was to vote for San Francisco, and it was this tenacity of purpose that won us the exposition. San Francisco is more largely in the public eye to-day than at any other time, and despite the disasters of the past, is awaiting the golden opportunity that lies before her. Representative Knowland was introduced by Representative Kahn, the toastmaster, as the man who had won the fight for San Francisco in Congress. Mr. Knowland strongly urged the proposed Poughoregan began preparations to go consolidation, but warned the association abroad to place his children in French that it could not be accomplished by forcing the question upon the people "The day may arrive when the locality will be consolidated," he said, "but I his sons in the Jesuit College and his It is important that you first get the full consent of Oakland and her suburbs before you can think of accomplishing to purpose, but a movement inaugurated simultaneously in both places will carry the day for a greater San Francisco.

Old Policy Is Best.

"I believe that every patriotic citizen thinks the canal should be fortified. people think, and neither does Representative Kahn belong to that class. But do believe in the old policy of of peace prepare for war.

M. F.
